7 Die in Wis. Sikh Temple Shooting

Gunman kills 6 before being fatally shot by an officer, authorities say

Oak Creek, Wis.

A gunman opened fire Sunday and killed six people at a Sikh temple near Milwaukee before he was killed in an exchange of gunfire with one of the first officers to respond to the chaotic scene, authorities said.

The shootings happened before 10:30 a.m., as several dozen people gathered at the Sikh Temple of Wisconsin for Sunday services. Hours of uncertainty followed as police in tactical gear and carrying assault rifles surrounded the temple with armored vehicles and ambulances, and witnesses struggled with unrealized fears that multiple gunman had taken hostages inside.

"We never thought this could happen to our community," said Devendar Nagra, 48, Mount Pleasant, whose sister escaped injury by hiding in the temple's kitchen. Other women and children barricaded themselves in closets. "We never did anything wrong to anyone."

The first official word from police was that they didn't know how many victims or suspects were involved. But after an extensive search of the temple,

A Rise in Bias Attacks

Sikhism is a monotheistic faith that was founded in South Asia more than 500 years ago. It has roughly 27 million followers worldwide, with roughly 500,000 Sikhs in the U.S. Observant Sikhs do not cut their hair; male followers often cover their heads with turbans and refrain from shaving their beards. Sikh rights groups have reported a rise in bias attacks since the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. The Washington-based Sikh Coalition has reported more than 700 incidents in the U.S. since 9/11 and advocates blame on anti-Islamic sentiment. (AP) authorities said they did not believe there was more than one shooter.

At a news conference late Sunday afternoon, Oak Creek Police Chief John Edwards released no information about the suspect, including his identity or a possible motive. Edwards said the FBI will lead the investigation because the shootings are being treated as an act of domestic terrorism.

Edwards said the gunman "ambushed" one of the first officers to arrive at the temple as the officer tended to a victim outside, and shot the officer multiple times. A second officer then exchanged gunfire with the suspect and fatally shot him.

Amid one of the hottest and driest summer in decades, thousands of fish are dying in the Midwest as the sizzling summer dries up rivers and raises water temperatures in some spots to nearly 100 degrees. # Taxes a Thorn in Romney's Side

Topic becomes main talking point on the Sunday news shows

Washington

Republicans on Sunday escalated their attacks on Senate Democratic leader Harry Reid over his claim last week that presumptive GOP presidential nominee Mitt Romney did not pay taxes for 10 years.

Speaking on ABC's "This Week," Republican Party chairman Reince Priebus called Reid a "dirty liar." Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., said on CNN's "State of the Union," "I think [Reid is] lying about his statement of knowing something about Romney," and he contended Reid was "making things up to divert the campaign away from the real issues."

Reid's spokesman, Adam Gentile-

Meanwhile ...

Mitt Romney is calling for "something dramatic" to help the economy recover, though the presumed Republican presidential candidate said he opposes another federal stimulus package and new government programs.

"[N]ow is the time for something dramatic. ... It's the time to create the incentives and the opportunities for entrepreneurs and businesses," Romney said in an interview aired Sunday on CNN's "State of the Union." (AP) son, contended that Republicans were trying to cover up for Romney, and the aide repeated Reid's claims that the source about Romney's taxes is "credible."

Other Democrats said Romney could clear up any confusion about his taxes by disclosing them to the public, and the issue was a main talking point on the Sunday news shows.

Reid said last week he had learned of the claim about Romney's taxes from an investor in Romney's former firm, Bain Capital. But the lawmaker hasn't offered any evidence to back it up and even has said he's not sure it's true.

Romney, who has disclosed that he's worth as much as $250 million, has said Reid's claim isn't true and that he's paid "a lot of taxes."

Romney's 2010 federal tax return shows he paid 13.9 percent tax on an income of $21.6 million. Most of Romney's income came from investment gains, which are taxed at a lower rate than earned income.

The candidate has refused to release more than one year of personal tax returns, despite calls from Democrats and some Republicans to do so, saying his critics would distort the information and use it against him. He has promised to release a second year of returns.

Okla. Wildfire Evacuations Lifted

Oklahoma City

Many Oklahomans forced to leave their homes because of raging wildfires were being allowed to return Sunday, despite some fires continuing to burn.

A "monster" fire had devoured almost 91 square miles and continued to burn between Mannford and Kellyville in northeastern Oklahoma's Creek County as light rain and cooler temperatures gave firefighters a brief respite Sunday, said Oklahoma Forestry Services spokeswoman Michelle Finch-Walker.

She described the blaze as hopscotching as it burns some areas and leaves others untouched.

"It's not like an inferno moving across the landscape," Finch-Walker said. "You can drive for miles down the highway and see nothing but black, but then you can see pockets of green, pockets unburned."

If you're happy with your dentures, don't read this!

WHY SUFFER WITH DENTURES?

For centuries, removable false teeth, or dentures, have been used to replace missing teeth. But denture-wearers report that many undesirable side effects come along with this less-than-ideal solution: Dentures are uncomfortable to wear and often slip or click; they can cause bad breath, and require ongoing and inconvenient maintenance; they often result in a weak bite, a fake-looking smile and an overly active gagging reflex.

Care and comfort aside, those with dentures also are prevented from eating many of the foods and participating in many of the activities they enjoy.

With today's science, there's simply no reason for anyone to struggle with dentures. In fact, many of the problems denture wearers struggle with can be solved in just one day* with the help of your ClearChoice team of dental implant professionals.

Denture wearers tend to struggle with:

- Shame or embarrassment when smiling
- Feeling limited in social situations
- Maintaining a fully active lifestyle
- Appearing older due to bone loss
- Health issues related to their teeth

THE SOLUTION IS DENTAL IMPLANTS.

Dental implants provide far better results than do dentures, because implants can prevent potential bone loss. Because they're anchored into the jawbone, the fusion of the implant and bone provides stability, just as the natural teeth did. Implants perform and are cared for just like natural teeth!

If you're missing some or all of your teeth, dental implants can stimulate the bone, protect against atrophy and help preserve your natural facial features.

Unlike dentures, dental implants are fixed in place, perform like your natural teeth, and can last a lifetime!

CHOOSE A BETTER LIFE TODAY.

Most people who choose dental implants report the decision to be life changing. Not only do dental implants look great and boost your confidence, but they can also restore you to the active lifestyle you've been missing. Swim, ski, laugh and sing. Give business presentations. Eat what you like. Do it all without worrying about how your smile looks, or that your teeth will slip or fall out!

'Decisive' Fight for Aleppo Looms

Syria's war escalates as rebels use guerilla tactics, take hostages

Beirut

Syrian forces threatened Sunday to mount a "decisive battle" for Aleppo even as rebels clawed toward the city's ancient center under intense bombardment and strafing from warplanes. In the capital of Damascus, militiamen appeared to step up guerrilla-like forays in central districts that were once firmly in the regime's hands.

The twin fronts reflected the rising stakes for both sides and a possible significant evolution in rebel strategies. Opposition forces appear to be shifting toward more hit-and-run strikes in Damascus and elsewhere to tie up Bashar Assad's forces and blur the lines between rebel and government-

Meanwhile ...

Syria's first man in space fled to Turkey and joined opposition forces fighting President Bashar Assad's regime, Turkey's state-run news agency reported Sunday. Mohammad Ahmad Faris, 61, crossed into Turkey after reaching the headquarters of the Free Syrian Army in Aleppo, meeting with rebel commanders there and declaring his solidarity with them, the Anadolu agency reported. "We are with you with our lives and blood," Anadolu quoted Faris as telling members of the Free Syrian Army. held territory.

The biggest prize of the ambush brigades so far — 48 abducted Iranians branded as spies by rebels — was put on display in a video that carried a warning that all Iranians in Syria would be "captured or killed" because of Tehran's strong backing for Assad. Iran said those captured when their bus was commandeered on Saturday were pilgrims visiting a Shiite shrine on the outskirts of Damascus.

"The Free Syrian Army does not seek to hold territory in Damascus, but rather stage hit-and-run attacks that drain the regime."

— KHALED AL-SHAMI, AN ACTIVIST IN DAMASCUS, ON SUNDAY DISMISSING THE OFFICIAL REPORTS THAT REBELS HAVE BEEN PUSHED FROM THE SYRIAN CAPITAL

Saturday's abductions threaten to suck Iran deeper into Syria's civil war and the wider political brinksmanship around the region. Iran claims it has no fighting forces aiding Assad, but it has sharply amplified its criticism of countries supporting the rebels.

In further signs of the growing proxy nature of Syria's conflict, Iran was forced to reach out to Turkey and Qatar with appeals to help return the captives.

Saturday's daylight hijacking on the main airport road in Damascus also raises questions about the regime's ability to control key parts of the capital and protect such symbols of Assad's power as the ministries and government offices — already breached once by a bombing last month that killed four members of Assad's inner circle, including his brother-in-law and the defense minister. ### Camp Leatherneck, Afghanistan

Afghan President Hamid Karzai said Sunday that he will respect the Afghan parliament's decision to remove two key ministers from office, a dramatic change in leadership during a pivotal stage in NATO's 11-year war.

Afghan lawmakers voted Saturday to impeach Defense Minister Abdul Rahim Wardak and Interior Minister Besmillah Mohammadi. Their impeachment marks a sharp articulation of public discontent, but leaves unanswered questions about the fate of Afghanistan's two most prominent ministries.

However, Karzai asked both men to remain in their positions until their successors are named.

Preservationists Say Upgrades Could Harm Union Station

Washington

Preservationists say proposed upgrades to Washington's Union Station could jeopardize its standing as an architectural icon.

Amtrak announced last month that it wants to spend $7 billion to double the number of trains the station can accommodate and turn it into a high-speed rail hub. Union Station opened in 1907 and is the second-busiest train station in the country. Amtrak has not laid out how the project would be funded.

Rebecca Miller is executive director of the D.C. Preservation League, which has compiled a new report that warns about the possibility of damaging the station's historic value. Miller tells the Washington Examiner that Amtrak "remains vague on how exactly the proposed changes would impact the physical structure or visual appeal" of Union Station. (AP)

City's up-and-coming areas deal with new crime opportunities

Washington

The streets of NoMa routinely teem with people well into the early morning as partiers stream through the doors of the massive nightclubs Ibiza and Fur. The neighborhood just north of Union Station is among the District's fastest-changing, and even its name has only begun to stick.

NoMa — short for north of Massachusetts Avenue — is now a bustling city within a city in Northeast Washington, and more condos and a new hotel are on the way. That has D.C. Police Chief Cathy L. Lanier girding for a surge in 911 calls from new residents concerned about safety, security and noise when 1,400 clubgoers step outside at 3 a.m. Her strategy for dealing with that, she said, is still being worked out.

leaders who say police are not moving quickly enough or deploying officers smartly enough in some areas to ensure a smooth transition for residents, businesses and visitors.

Staffing — and funding — large-scale deployments at night can be tricky, "because the city is so busy during the day," Lanier said. But she said that protecting redeveloping neighborhoods is a priority, not an option.

"We can't afford to have those areas not continue to grow because of crime," she said.

300 Join D.C. Vouchers Program

Washington

Nearly 300 children have been awarded new private-school tuition vouchers under a federal program that's been the source of tension between Congress and the White House.

More than 1,400 students are already receiving vouchers, and 1,300 applied for open slots this year. Just over 500 were found eligible, and 299 were selected for vouchers through a lottery.

Many of the winners gathered Saturday to talk to private-school representatives and final enrollment decisions.

The program has been in place since 2004, and the nation's capital is the only jurisdiction where federal tax dollars are used to subsidize private-school tuition.

The Obama administration has attempted to phase it out, but House Majority Leader John Boehner and others in Congress have fought to keep it.

Voucher recipients can get up to $12,205 to attend participating private high schools and $8,136 to attend elementary and middle schools. EMMA BROWN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

New in Town? Read This.

Dr. Gridlock has some tips for area rookies trying to get around

Washington

■ People from across the country occasionally write to me about an exciting new employment opportunity and ask where in the Washington area they should live for the best commute. Welcome to our nightmare, I tell them. The nation's capital might be the land of opportunity for jobs, but it's the land of discontent for commuting to those jobs. These are five questions that newcomers frequently ask as they prepare to navigate our congested roads and transit routes.

ROBERT THOMSON (THE WASHINGTON POST)

I've heard that the Washington area has the worst traffic in the country. What's the basis for that?

A 2011 report by the Texas Transportation Institute, which tries to quantify commuter misery nationwide, ranked the D.C. region at or near the top in several measures of congestion.

We've been hovering around the peak for many years, but that doesn't scare people away. A key reason behind the high ranking is the strength of the local economy.

Jobs, entertainment and cultural opportunities are magnets for travelers.

Are travel conditions uniformly awful?

No. As a region, we look bad, but your travel experience will vary depending on where you choose to work and live. Don't put unnecessary distance between the two.

Don't let the Potomac or Anacostia rivers come between you and your job. Don't select a residence that offers only one route to work. Do look for a residence with access to both roads and transit. Do find a neighborhood with sidewalks.

What's the worst thing about commuting in the Washington area?

Washingtonians learn to live with the slow trips. What really drives them nuts is the uncertainty of any given trip. They can't count on a trip taking the same amount of time today as it did yesterday.

There are so many vehicles competing to travel in so few lanes that a minor disruption — a fender bender — can congeal traffic for miles and add serious time to any trip.

The farther apart your start and end points, the more buffer time you must build in to avoid being late.

What traffic bottlenecks are notorious?

All the Potomac and Anacostia river crossings but particularly the 14th Street bridge. Also bad are Interstate 395, the northern arc of the Capital Beltway between College Park and Silver Spring, the junction of the Beltway and Interstate 270, eastbound Interstate 66 at the Beltway, the eastbound Dulles Toll Road at the Beltway and the Beltway at Telegraph Road.

But those are just the top tier of delay-prone highways. During rush hour, you could be stuck on Rockville Pike, Georgia Avenue, Colesville Road, New York Avenue, Pennsylvania Avenue, Suitland Parkway, Arlington Boulevard, Washington Boulevard, George Washington Parkway, Chain Bridge Road and Leesburg Pike — to name just a few common trouble spots.

Am I better off taking transit?

The answer used to be "absolutely," because the Washington region has one of the nation's most extensive transit systems. But our primary transit asset, Metrorail, is now very crowded — especially on the western sides of the Orange and Red lines — and the equipment is showing its age. Metro's rehab program is intensive and almost always disrupts the weekend rail service.

Pistorius Falls Short

Double-amputee Oscar Pistorius, the first track athlete to run on prosthetics at the Olympics, finished last in his 400-meter semifinal Sunday and did not advance to Monday's final. Pistorius said his goal in London was to qualify for the semifinals. But lined up in a more competitive eight-man field a day after doing so, the South African finished in 46.54 seconds Sunday night, .95 of a second behind winner Kirani James of Grenada. Still, his Olympics are not over: Pistorius is expected to compete in the 4×400 relays, which begin Thursday. (TWP/AP) start. The end is what's important."

Ever the showman, the Jamaican kept right on running for a victory lap that included high-fives for front-row fans, a pause to crouch down and kiss the track and even a somersault. Thousands in the crowd chanted the champion's name: "Usain! Usain! Usain!"

Bolt's training partner and Jamaican teammate, world champion Yohan Blake, won the silver in 9.75, and 2004 Olympic champion Justin Gatlin of the U.S. earned the bronze in 9.79.

Joy in Jamaica

Jamaica is already in a party mood. It's celebrating its 50th anniversary of independence from Britain on Monday. Plus, Shelly-Ann Fraser-Pryce on Saturday earned back-to-back Olympic titles in the women's 100 meters, an exciting start to a historic weekend in Jamaica. (AP)

At Beijing four years ago, the 6-foot-5 Bolt electrified track and field, winning gold medals in world-record times in the 100, 200 and 4×100 relay — something no man had ever done at an Olympics. His 100 mark of 9.69 set there, the one that came despite some slowing down for celebratory chest-slapping, only lasted until the next year's world championships, when he lowered the record to 9.58.

But The World's Fastest Man had been something less than Boltesque since then, in part due to a string of minor injuries to his back and legs. In 2010, he lost to Tyson Gay, the American who cried after ending up fourth Sunday. A false start knocked Bolt out of the 100 at last year's world championships, creating an opening for Blake. Then came recent, much-discussed losses to Blake in the 100 and 200 at the Jamaican Olympic trials.

Bolt's subsequent withdrawal from a meet in Monaco only added to the intrigue and set up the most anticipated story line of the 2012 Games.

Bolt never let any of that affect him in London. He came to these Olympics with the stated intention of becoming a "living legend."

If he hasn't accomplished that already, he's sure close. Bolt begins defending his title in the 200 in Tuesday's heats. HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

Bolt Still Golden

Jamaican sprinter sets an Olympic record defending his 100-meter title

Track and Field

Pulling away from the pack with every long stride, Usain Bolt crossed the finish line and thrust his right index finger in the air.

Yes, he's still No. 1 in the 100-meter dash. Maybe not better than ever, but Bolt is definitely back.

Only about fifth-fastest of the eight runners to the halfway mark Sunday night, Bolt erased that deficit and overtook a star-studded field to win the final in 9.63 seconds, an Olympic record that let him join Carl Lewis as the only men to claim consecutive gold medals in the marquee track and field event at the Summer Games.

"I executed, and that's the key," Bolt said. "I stopped worrying about the

Richards-Ross Races to Gold

Four years after settling for bronze, American Sanya Richards-Ross on Sunday sped to gold in the women's 400-meter dash with a time of 49.55 seconds — for the first U.S. gold in track and field at the London Games. Her U.S. teammate DeeDee Trotter took bronze, finishing in 49.72. Britain's Christine Ohuruogu won silver with a time of 49.70, nipping Trotter by just two-hundredths of a second. Richards-Ross, 27, already owned two gold medals — the 4×400 relay from Athens and Beijing — but this marks her first individual Olympic title. She'll race in the women's 200 meter and the 4×400 relay later this week. (TWP/AP)

Murray tops Federer for gold, to the delight of the home crowd

Tennis

Andy Murray stood with the Union Jack draped over his shoulders, an Olympic gold medal around his neck, flanked by the man he had just beaten, Roger Federer, and basking in the roar of the Centre Court crowd.

No wonder the often dour Scotsman was grinning. Murray won one for the home team Sunday, beating Federer 6-2, 6-1, 6-4 in the tennis final at Wimbledon.

The victory marked a career breakthrough for Murray. He has lost all four of his Grand Slam finals, three against Federer, including Wimbledon a month ago.

"I've had a lot of tough losses in my career," he said. "This is the best way to come back from the Wimbledon final. I'll never forget it."

For Federer, the drubbing marked another Olympic disappointment. Playing in the games for the fourth time, he sought a victory to complete a career Gold-

Britain's Dream Weekend

Britain awoke, afraid it might all have been a dream. It wasn't: Six gold medals, including three in track and field within the space of an hour Saturday night, had given the country its best day at an Olympics since 1908. The Observer declared it "Britain's greatest day," and the Sunday Times — reaching for wartime resonances — said it was "Our finest Olympic hour." The Sun dubbed it "The six pack," referring to the medals and to the washboard abs of British heptathlon champ Jessica Ennis. (AP) en Slam but settled for silver — his first singles medal.

"Don't feel too bad for me," Federer said. "I felt like I won my silver, I didn't lose it. So I feel really happy."

Murray swept nine consecutive games to take control, breaking Federer's serve four times in a row, his inspired play a reflection of raucous crowd support. He erased all nine break points he faced.

"He never looked back," Federer said. "He did an unbelievable job."

The match capped the most memorable Olympics for tennis since it returned to the Games in 1988 after a 64-year absence. The event transformed staid Wimbledon into a more festive place.

Murray became the first British man to win the gold in singles since Josiah Ritchie in 1908. Those Games took place at Wimbledon, too. STEVEN WINE (AP)

Gordon Earns First Win of Season

Auto Racing

Jeff Gordon took advantage of an accident sparked by teammate Jimmie Johnson and a touch of timely rain at Pocono Raceway to win his first race of the season.

Gordon earned his 86th career victory Sunday and thrust himself into wild-card contention in the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship.

Johnson inadvertently gave his Hendrick Motorsports teammate the help he needed. Johnson got loose off a restart and knocked Matt Kenseth into the wall. Kenseth slid down the track and took out Denny Hamlin. With an unexpected opening, Gordon zoomed to the lead in the No. 24 Chevrolet.

It couldn't have come at a better time. The skies opened and cars were ordered off the track. The race was called with 98 of the 160 scheduled laps completed. (AP)

WEEK-TO-WEEK POSITION LAST WEEK NEW FILM
AUG. 3-5; SOURCE: BOXOFFICEMOJO.COM

Some posters for the film "Jism 2" had to be removed in Mumbai, India, after a local politician complained that they were too racy.

Bawdy Bollywood

India's conservative movie industry gets racy with provocative new picture

Film

It stars a hard-core adult film actress and has a title that would appear to leave little to the imagination. But it's not a porn movie — Bollywood is not ready for that.

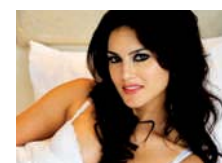

"Jism 2" — the word means "body" in Hindi language — was released across India last Friday, promising to be one of the most graphic films in Bollywood history. It shows no frontal nudity — government censors monitoring a film industry that long refused to show onscreen kissing would never clear that. But with its oil massages and revealing lingerie, the film is pushing the ever-widening sexual boundaries enjoyed by many in urban India.

At the same time, growing sexual freedom has sparked a backlash by traditionalists who have torn down its risqué poster, led a crackdown on bars in Mumbai and even advocated an informal curfew for women.

First, some words on the movie's title. Director Pooja Bhatt insists there was no double entendre intended. But the title, coupled with the oeuvre of the film's leading lady, Sunny Leone, set off alarm bells at Apple, Google and YouTube.

Apple rejected the filmmakers' request to list "Jism 2" — a sequel to the 2003 film

Unlikely Star

Adult film and "Jism 2" star Sunny Leone, born in Canada to Indian immigrants, thought she'd be run out of town when she appeared on the Indian reality TV show "Bigg Boss" last year. "I've done everything that I could do wrong in the Indian culture," she says. (AP)

"Jism" — on its Movie Talkies app.

"They wrote to us saying I'm sorry it's a rude word, this is porn," Bhatt says. "We said no it's not, it's a legitimate Hindi film."

Google ultimately allowed the filmmakers to tag their ads with "jism" and "Sunny Leone," and YouTube allowed the promotional videos, says Alnoor Merchant, head of digital marketing for the film. Apple, though, is insisting the filmmakers either remove the promotional photos of Leone or restrict the content with an adult rating, he said.

The film has already caused a minor stir in Mumbai, where filmmakers had to remove posters featuring a glowing image of a woman's arched naked body draped in a wet white sheet after a local politician complained.

"You'll always have these two polarities," says Mahesh Bhatt, Pooja's father and the screenwriter for "Jism 2." "Pretending to police the moral values of a society is the easiest way for politicians to earn brownie points."

Bhatt and her father say they are not trying to sneakily expose India's children to dirty pictures. At heart, they say, the film is an old-fashioned love story.

But why back away from the sexiness they claim to embrace?

Pooja Bhatt says she wants to get her movie into theaters without trouble and will continue to fight to make "fiercely sensual" films for adult Indian audiences.

"Look at the population of the country," Bhatt says. "Someone is having sex."

Cooly G Plays All the Angles

Album Review

The world of U.K. electronic dance music is a dense thicket of sub-genres. On her impressive full-length debut, "Playin' Me," British DJ/producer Cooly G not only traverses different styles of dance music with ease but also manages to appeal to casual listeners who wouldn't know garage from grime.

Cooly G's music is most often classified under the umbrella of U.K. funky — an Afro-Latin-influenced deep house — but dance music fans of all sorts should be able to find something to drool over here, whether it's the artfully screechy head trip "Is It Gone" or the twisty, unpredictable rhythm ride of "It's Serious."

Playin' Me
Cooly G

Many of her songs have a non-watered-down crossover appeal, mostly due to her R&B/soul vocals. "Trying" is the sexiest track, and that applies whether one's idea of sexy is throbbing reverb or hushed female vocals.

Even more impressive than the compositions that take Cooly G's music to the masses are those that make the opposite trip, such as "Trouble," a Coldplay cover/remix. Cooly G's voice follows the song's original melody, but with some jagged, layered rhythmic work, she manages to take Coldplay to an unexpected and wonderful place: the club.

Pom Wonderful

A musical 'Bring It On' faithfully captures the cheer experience

Stage

Pity the cheerleader. Depending on your former place in the hierarchy of high school cliques, that might not be easy. Even though they rule the school, cheerleaders don't fare as well in pop culture: They're the unattainable ice queens, the mean girls, the — spell it out now! — D-U-M-B [clap] B-L-O-N-D-E-S.

But there's one allegation that's no longer hurled at these pom-pomwaving archetypes: They aren't competing in a genuine sport. And that's due, in part, to the 2000 Kirsten Dunst film "Bring It On," now adapted into a Broadway musical at the St. James Theatre in New York.

Though it's just loosely faithful to the film, "Bring It On: The Musical" is quite faithful to the sport.

When it eventually tours the country, every teenage girl who is or was or ever wanted to be a cheerleader will line up for tickets to this show, and will see themselves in Campbell's shoes. She's the perky blond cheerleader portrayed by newcomer Taylor Louderman, who is elected to lead her suburban high school's cheerleaders to the championship — until she's redistricted to an inner-city school, where she can't manage to fit in.

But cheerleading is Campbell's life, so she manipulates a hip-hop dance crew run by popular girl Danielle (Adrienne Warren) into becoming a co-ed cheer squad.

Despite the talents of Lin-Manuel Miranda ("In the Heights") and Jeff Whitty ("Avenue Q"), the book, lyrics and music of "Bring It On" won't win it a broad audience. But its stunts are top-notch and more like Cirque du Soleil than anything else you'll see in the theater.

1 Ancient Innovation

Muslim culture, which stretched across Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Europe for a time, was a wellspring of creativity. "1001 Inventions" is a traveling show that focuses on the technological innovations of the Muslim world in centuries past, including a giant "elephant clock" that will be on view. National Geographic, 1145 17th St. NW; through Feb. 3, $4-$8; 202-857-7588, Events.nationalgeographic.com. (Farragut North)

2 Summer Showers

If you MUST come in costume to this week's Screen on the Green, please come as Janet Leigh in the Shower as opposed to Person With Giant Stabby Knife. The Park Service will appreciate it. Even without Hitchcockian cosplay, "Psycho" makes for great viewing, particularly if you don't know the ending. Celebrate summer — and the end of this year's SOTG — by watching one of cinema's most terrifying murder mysteries. Between 7th and 12th streets NW; Mon., sunset, free. (Smithsonian)

3 Antic Disposition

Taffety Punk brings Shakespeare's lesser plays to light in "Bootleg Shakespeare" productions, where actors learn their lines but get only a single rehearsal before the performance. This year, they're doing "Hamlet" — but the infamous "bad quarto," a version of the play that's much different than the one we're used to. Folger Theatre, 201 East Capitol St. SE; Mon., 7 p.m., free; Taffetypunk.com. ## Michea Gaines, Bobby James Jr.

Michea, 28, works for the Department of Justice. Bobby, 31, is an HVAC mechanic. They live in D.C.

THE MAIN EVENT: They will wed in front of 230 guests at the University of Maryland, College Park, on Aug. 12. Their pastor will officiate, and they'll jump the broom to honor their heritage.

HOW THEY MET: At work five years ago, when he worked in the same building as Michea. "We both said, 'You look familiar,'" she says, "and we realized we attended the same high school."

EUNIQUE JONES PHOTOGRAPHY

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "She has a pretty smile." One day, he showed up at her desk with ice cream. He had the wrong flavor, "but he still wooed me over."

FIRST DATE: To see Tyler Perry's "Why Did I Get Married?"

HOW HE PROPOSED: A surprise trip to St. Thomas and a private dinner on the beach. A photographer Bobby hired snapped a pic just as he got down on one knee. Says Michea, "Can you say, 'Job well done'?"

MOST HATED CLOTHING ITEM: Her "old lady dress."

STUPIDEST FIGHT: Whose turn it is to do the dishes.

THEIR SONGS: "Fool for You" by Cee Lo Green, and "Close to You" by BeBe and CeCe Winans.

Amanda Allen, Michael Seavey

Amanda, 27, is a victim advocate. Michael, 28, is an analyst. They live in Alexandria.

THE MAIN EVENT: A low-key Sept. 2 wedding on the Maine coast.

HOW THEY MET: Michael's former colleague introduced them at a bar.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: After their meeting, the matchmaker then drove them (and two others) to a new bar. "I thought Michael was tall and cute, but in the car ride, he ended up in the trunk because he was too tall for the backseat. Not very romantic," says Amanda.

FIRST DATE: Dinner at Old Ebbitt Grill ("she sent all her food back") and ice skating at the National Gallery of Art's Sculpture Garden.

FIRST KISS: Michael: "It was the weakest peck ever. I'm legitimately surprised we got this far on that performance."

HOW HE PROPOSED: At Gravelly Point, while they were watching the planes land with an illicit bottle of Trader Joe's champagne.

Luis Interiano, Michelle Merced-Cruz

Luis, 37, is an e-commerce manager. Michelle, 34, is a graphic designer. They live in Alexandria.

THE MAIN EVENT: A Sept. 1 event in Alexandria. "I never went to prom, homecoming, or had a 'quince,'" says

Michelle. "So this is going to be the party of all parties. Let's get fancy!"

HONEYMOON: Courtesy of Theknot.com (they entered a contest and won!), they're spending a week in Punta Cana in the Dominican Republic.

HOW THEY MET: At work. She was in charge of coordinating lunch orders one day, and Luis, the new guy, never got his food. "To make up, I asked him to lunch on another occasion. He said he would never forget, and he hasn't to this day."

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: Michelle: "Ooh la la! New guy is cute!"

FIRST DATE: A happy hour at Sweet Water Tavern in Sterling, Va.

HOW HE PROPOSED: While dining at Le Yaca, a French restaurant in Williamsburg, Va. "It's French for 'let's do it,' and that's exactly what I was asking Michelle."

THEIR SONG: "La Locura Automatica" ("Automatic Madness"), by Puerto Rican band La Secta.

“Ozzy Osbourne may be a rickety, self-described ‘lunatic.’ But as the Black Sabbath front-man proved during the English rockers’ headlining set on the opening night of Lollapalooza Friday, there’s still fire burning deep in his Satan-loving heart.”

— Dan Hyman at ROLLINGSTONE.COM was impressed with the 63-year-old’s performance at the music festival held on the North Lawn of Chicago’s Grant Park.

“With the world caught up in Olympics fever right now, you’d think a film like the competitive rowing drama, ‘Backwards,’ would be angling for a release to better capitalize on it. Instead, it’s got zero momentum, zero buzz, and probably will be a tough film to find at your local multiplex.”

— Travis Hopson at PUNCHDRUNK-CRITICS.COM thinks the upcoming movie starring Sarah Megan Thomas and James Van Der Beek has been highly underplayed, but “could make for a good date night flick when it opens on September 21st.”

“If this means more Paul F. Tompkins (Cake Boss!), Doug Benson and Julie Klausner then I’m 100% behind this happening.”

— Commenter cameron d at HUFFINGTONPOST.COM reacts to news VH1 is bringing back their weekly show “Best Week Ever” as part of its new Friday night humor block that will also feature a pop culture nostalgia series “Miss You Much,” hosted by Catherine Reitman.

“Yes, a lot of the people who live in my computer also exist in my day-to-day real life world, but other than four or five people that I am closest to, I hadn’t yet said to someone’s face, ‘I am autistic.’”

NIH researchers seek depressed persons ages 18-65 for participation in research studies. Evaluations for medication studies (standard and novel antidepressants) and brain imaging studies include 1-4 visits, psychiatric interviews, medical history, physical exam, blood and other medical tests.

Research studies (outpatient or inpatient) are conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland. Participants must be free of other serious medical conditions. Research evaluations and medications are provided at no cost. Compensation is provided for research procedures and brain imaging.

Horoscope

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll want to keep things out in the open today, avoiding anything that smacks of illicit or secretive behavior.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Any complaints you may have about what you are going through must be properly delivered and received to do you any good at all.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You are on the right track, but you haven't yet gotten rid of all doubts. You'll want to listen to what an objective party has to offer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) It's a good day for you to assume a new leadership role—at least temporarily. You can learn much about what may lie ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) What goes on at home will affect your behavior at the workplace. That, in turn, will affect the options you have to work with.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can spend some quality time with someone who is not always a prominent part of your day. He or she has important news for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You can lay things out in such a way that progress becomes almost automatic. You don't want to abandon all personal influence, however.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Those in charge may be looking to you to help minimize stress and keep things progressing at a steady pace.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are after something that may be hidden from view. Look in all the usual places first—then be ready to head into uncharted territory.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The earlier you start, the earlier you'll finish—and that will give you the time you need to tend to a pressing personal issue.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're eager to get a message to someone who is far from home. He or she may be surprised to learn what you've been planning.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may find yourself in a situation that reveals more questions than answers, but you'll be ready to face such mental challenges.
